Main Street considers strategies for downtown

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison Main Street received the Great American Main Street award earlier this year, but work is continuing on strategies to move downtown Madison successfully forward.

Last Thursday, Madison Main Street hosted a public meeting on Transformation Strategies as part of a two-day workshop to analyze market-driven strategies for Madison's historic downtown.

Jackie Swihart, Main Street America's program officer for Revitalization Services, was in Madison along with Andrea Kern, director of Strategic Initiatives for the Indiana Main Street Program, to work with local business owners, residents, real estate agents, elected officials and others in developing strategies for success in downtown Madison.

The workshop was a service provided by Indiana Main Street through the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA).

Swihart noted that efforts to develop strategies should "always be informed by data" and provided results from a community survey while presenting information on downtown Madison derived from the Census and from Placer.ai for demographics on the people visiting downtown Madison.

Although she provided a lot of information at the public meeting, she noted it was only a small portion of the data that exists. "Our goal is not to make your lives harder and recommend strategies for you that will be near impossible for you to implement," said Swihart. "What we want to do is to build off an existing cluster of what you're already doing well, and also leverage your unique assets. You have amazing assets, and we want to leverage those for your work ... We really want to think about what strategies are realistic, and you can really own and leverage as a community."

Mom thankful after first responders locate missing daughter

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Officers from the Jennings County Sheriff's Office located and rescued a mentally handicapped 52-year-old Commiskey woman after she wandered off from her parent's home on the night of Thursday, Aug. 15, and ended up in a small branch about three-quarters of a mile away.

Jennifer Henry, of the 4500 block of West County Road 600 South, had been missing for several hours when she was located. Her family had searched the area around the home and their 150-acre farm before calling the sheriff's office to help locate their daughter.

"It was a miracle they ever found her," said Shannon Henry, Jennifer's mother. "We have a 150-acre farm and we searched the whole farm and couldn't find her. We would have never found her in that branch."

Chief Deputy Cody Low said afterward he is proud of everyone who helped located the missing woman.

"Deputy (Morgan) Gabbard's situational awareness led to the area of the missing person," said Low. "The key to locating the missing person was put together by information gathered upon her arrival at the scene and remembering what she had seen on the roadway while in route. This logic was applied and instrumental in the positive outcome. I cannot be more proud of all those involved in this incident."

Commissioners to utilize consultant to plan for county growth

BY BOB DEMAREE

County Commissioners hope to name the consultant who will review the county's existing infrastructure and identify potential growth opportunities in Jefferson County at their next meeting in September.

Commissioner David Bramer said at last Thursday's meeting that "the purpose is to give ideas on things that would need to be done if people are interested in developing certain areas of the county."

Bramer said the consultant's work will involve two or three areas in the county. "We have received several proposals and completed the evaluation," he said, with the announcement on the consultant coming at the Commissioners meeting Thursday, Sept. 5.

He said the consultant "may point us in directions we hadn't thought of, or things we had thought of, that are already there," and all of that information will be useful as the county plans for potential growth.

Bramer noted that one area that could see future growth is Saluda Township related to Clark County's River Ridge Commerce Center that has led to multiple developments on State Road 62 near Charlestown. He also wondered about investigating whether there is any existing infrastructure at Marble Hill — where construction started and then was halted on a nuclear power plant more than 40 years ago — that could be an asset for development.

Bramer also addressed work that is continuing in the effort to find funding sources to build a new animal shelter, even after that project failed to receive READI (Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative) grant funding.

He said requests for proposals are being sought for design of an animal shelter. "If you have a picture, people are more apt to get behind it," Bramer said, adding that having a design in hand could better position the county to acquire grant funding for a new animal shelter.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Bobby Little said repairs will be made at the current animal shelter at 2727 Hannah Drive on Madison's hilltop. He said bids are being sought for a new ceiling to replace one impacted by mold and for making repairs to maintain the building sufficiently with hope that funding can be

New book tells story of local jewelry designer Smith

BY BOB DEMAREE

Discovering the story of Bill Smith, a fashion and jewelry designer who was born and raised in Madison, has been a passion of JoAnne Spiller the last four years and has led to her publishing a book, "Visionary Designs by Bill Smith, tj."

Spiller, director of education for the Jefferson County Historical Society since 2000, will hold a book signing from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the restored historic depot, located next to the Jefferson County History and Art Center, 615 West First Street. The event will also include a display of Smith's designs.

Smith, a 1951 graduate of Madison High School, became a prominent jewelry designer and was the first Black recipient of the Coty award for his creations. "He was the first to have been able to put his name on pieces that he designed," said Spiller, using the letters "tj." after his name to not be confused with Bill Smith, the dress designer.

Fashion and jewelry designer Bill Smith, who was born and raised in Madison, is the subject of a new book, "Visionary Designs by Bill Smith, tj," by local historian JoAnne Spiller. She will hold a book signing on Saturday.

In 1968, Smith became a head designer for the Richelieu jewelry firm, which at the time was the second largest jewelry company in American, then two months later he assumed the role of the company's vice president, the first African American in that position. His designs were sought by socialites and performers such as Loretta Young, Lena Horne and Cicely Tyson. Smith designed nearly 200 pieces of jewelry for the Broadway production of Coco, starring Katharine Hepburn. He was also selected to create the crown for the Miss Black America pageant, which was worn by winners from 1968-1975.

"He was really a big deal," said Spiller, who said until recently Smith's achievements were not well known locally.

Spiller was working on a book of famous local people for fourth graders when she happened upon an article about Smith in the museum's archives from the Nov. 23, 1969, edition of the Judge rules Taylor’s boyfriend caused her death

Some charges dismissed against ex-officers

BY DYLAN LOVAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A federal judge has thrown out major felony charges against two former Louisville officers accused of falsifying a warrant that led police to Breonna Taylor’s door before they fatally shot her.

U.S. District Judge Charles Simpson’s ruling declared that the actions of Taylor’s boyfriend, who fired a shot at police the night of the raid, were the legal cause of her death, not a bad warrant.

Federal charges against former Louisville Police Detective Joshua Jaynes and former Sgt. Kyle Meany were announced by U.S. Attorney General Merrick Garland in 2022 during a high-profile visit to Louisville. Garland accused Jaynes and Meany, who were not present at the raid, of knowing they had falsified part of the warrant and put Taylor in a dangerous situation by sending armed officers to her apartment.

But Simpson wrote in the Tuesday ruling that “there is no direct link between the warrantless entry and Taylor’s death.” Simpson’s ruling effectively reduced the civil rights violation charges against Jaynes and Meany, which had carried a maximum sentence of life in prison, to misdemeanors.

The judge declined to dismiss a conspiracy charge against Jaynes and another charge against Meany, who is accused of making false statements to investigators.

When police carrying a drug warrant broke down Taylor’s door in March 2020, her boyfriend, Kenneth Walker, fired a shot that struck an officer in the leg. Walker said he believed an intruder was bursting in. Officers returned fire, striking and killing Taylor, a 26-year-old Black woman, in her hallway.

Simpson concluded that Walker’s “conduct became the proximate, or legal, cause of Taylor’s death.”

“While the indictment alleges that Jaynes and Meany set off a series of events that ended in Taylor’s death, it also alleges that (Walker) disrupted those events when he decided to open fire” on the police, Simpson wrote.

Walker was initially arrested and charged with attempted murder of a police officer, but that charge was later dropped after his attorneys argued Walker didn’t know he was firing at police.

“Obviously we are devastated at the moment by the judge’s ruling with which we disagree and are just trying to process everything,” Taylor’s family wrote in a statement Friday to The Associated Press. It said prosecutors told the family they plan to appeal Simpson’s ruling.

“The only thing we can do at this point is continue to be patient ... we will continue to fight until we get full justice for Breonna Taylor.”

The U.S. Justice Department said in an email that it “is reviewing the judge’s decision and assessing next steps.”

A third former officer charged in the federal warrant case, Kelly Goodlett, pleaded guilty in 2022 to a conspiracy charge and is expected to testify against Jaynes and Meany at their trials.

Federal prosecutors alleged Jaynes, who drew up the Taylor warrant, had claimed to Goodlett days before the warrant was served that he had “verified” from a postal inspector that a suspected drug dealer was receiving packages at Taylor’s apartment. But Goodlett knew that was false and told Jaynes the warrant did not yet have enough information connecting Taylor to criminal activity, prosecutors said. She added a paragraph saying the suspected drug dealer was using Taylor’s apartment as his current address, according to court records.

Two months later, when the Taylor shooting was attracting national headlines, Jaynes and Goodlett met in Jaynes’ garage to “get on the same page” before Jaynes talked to investigators about the Taylor warrant, court records said.

A fourth former officer, Brett Hankison, was also charged by federal prosecutors in 2022 with endangering the lives of Taylor, Walker and some of her neighbors when he fired into Taylor’s windows. A trial last year ended with a hung jury, but Hankison is schedule to be retried on those charges in October.

Courier-Journal. She didn’t have much more information than that, so she started researching, and once she got started, she couldn’t stop. “The more I researched him, I realized how talented he was, and it became a mission for me to tell his story because it had been forgotten.”

Spiller went on to make research trips to New York, where Smith lived after leaving Indiana. She also connected with jewelry designer and sculptor Cliff Nicholson, a Scottsburg resident, who worked two years for Smith. He provided her with a large grocery bag full of jewelry that Smith had designed, items that have been valuable in her research.

Smith never returned to Madison after he left in the late 1950s, and Spiller suggested he had no reason to return. She said his parents had moved to Indianapolis, but there were also other reasons. “He was Black. He was gay” and in that era “where was he going to fit in? Why was he going to come back?”

Spiller said Smith “had to leave in order to become something. If you weren’t welcome, then why come back.”

Spiller said her book “is my way of making up that he wasn’t appreciated for what he was doing in his own community while he was alive.”

Smith died in New York in 1991. The book is partially a biography and partially a catalog of Smith’s work. It includes nearly 300 photographs, 10 editorial fashion photographs (out of more than the 200 that featured his work) and dozens of advertisements that serve to authenticate his designs.

Spiller said Smith is a role model for Madison youth. “You can be from small town Madison and still go on to do fantastic wonderful things,” she said. “Don’t let the size of your community hold you back. Sometimes you have to leave your community to do what you need to do. No one community has everything for everybody. So, have a role model, look at this role model, and take hope with you of what you can do.”

Madison’s event, a project of the Kindred Folk Society is also the kickoff for Front Porch Legacy, a series of jam shops the group will host through June of next year, pairing professional musicians with amateurs for local concerts. Play Music on the Porch Day will utilize 10 “porch” venues in downtown Madison with more than 40 musicians. “It’s going to be awesome,” said Jane Vonderheide, a member of Kindred Folk Society’s board of directors. 27th Rockin’ on the River brings cars, music

Free event is major fundraiser for Salvation Army

BY BOB DEMAREE

The annual Rockin’ on the River car show and music will return to Madison’s riverfront Saturday for the 27th annual event, serving as a fundraiser for the Madison Salvation Army. Registration for the Rockin on the River car show will begin at 10 a.m. with vehicles located along Vaughn Drive from Jefferson Street to Elm Street. Cost is $25 per vehicle to participate on the day of show. Pre-registration through MadTix is $18. Winner will receive award at an awards ceremony at 3 p.m. After the car show is over, the music begins. One again the Louisville band, The Monarchs, who have performed at Rockin’ on the River every year since 2012, will perform at Bicentennial Park from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Prior to that, a group of Madison Consolidated High School choir and band students, the Elite Pops, will perform at 4 p.m. Both the car show and music are free to the public, but Salvation Army red kettles will be placed on the riverfront for donation to help support the ministry’s work. The event is the Salvation Army’s second biggest fundraiser of the year — only behind the traditional Red Kettle drive during the Christmas season. “We love serving this community and we love what we do,” said Salvation Army Captain Janelle Cleaveland. However, she noted the financial support is vital to the organization’s work. “We can’t do what we do in this community without money, unfortunately,” said Cleaveland, adding that about $500,000 is needed annually. “We don’t receive government funding” and rely totally on fundraising. The Salvation Army helps people in need in various ways such as serving more than 200,000 meals through its feeding program as well as rent and utility assistance, free dental care, providing a warming shelter on cold winter nights when temperatures are below freezing and more. Cleaveland said there are some communities where the Salvation Army has been forced to close in recent years due to lack of funding. “Even though there are people in those communities that need it, the community is not supporting Salvation Army. Thankfully, Madison supports us very well and we’re very grateful for the support we receive all year long,” she said.

BY BOB DEMAREE

The traditional Old Settlers Meeting at Neavill’s Grove, now in its 139th year, will stage its two-day festival Friday and Saturday that includes antique tractors, live music, line dancing, food and fellowship. Music on Friday will be provided by Gary Brown Acoustic Country from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, there will be live music by Melissa Wolf from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. and the Bee Camp Bottom Boys from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Country Kickers line dancers will perform Saturday from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Antique tractors and vintage garden tractors will be on a display throughout the event, highlighted by a tractor parade Saturday at noon with participants parading their tractors around the circle at Neavill’s Grove. Earlier on Saturday, there will be an official opening at 11:30 a.m. with the national anthem and flag raising ceremony led by the Sons of the American Revolution. The 27th annual bake-off contest will be at 1:30 p.m. with categories for cakes and pies. Entries should be submitted between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. with a limit of one entry per person per category and no refrigerated items. Competitors should submit a recipe for judges’ use only with each entry. Children’s games and contests will start at approximately 2 p.m. with a cornhole toss, coin pickup, water relay, water balloon toss, parent calling and bubble gum. There will be prizes for all winners. There will also be a firing of the candy cannon. Food on Friday will be served beginning at 5 p.m. with fish sandwiches topping the menu. On Saturday, a homemade ham and bean supper will be available beginning at 4 p.m. The Neavill’s Grove park is located seven miles northwest of Madison at 6576 Deputy Pike. Throughout its 139-year history the event has been held in the same location at the Neavill’s Grove, making it the oldest continuous civic event in Jefferson County under the same name. Neavill’s Grove is part of the old George Neavill Sr. 160-acre farm in Smyrna Township. In 1916, Edward Neavill, grandson of George Neavill Sr., donated and deeded 12 acres of land to Neavill’s Grove Incorporated to be maintained as a community picnic and recreation grounds and preserved for its historic background and beauty. In 1924, Edward Neavill donated and deeded an additional eight acres to the association.

Parks Board adopts resolution allowing BPWS to approve claims

BY BOB DEMAREE
Madison Parks Board passed a resolution at a special meeting Friday that allows the Board of Public Works and Safety to approve Parks and Recreation Department claims if the Parks Board is unable to meet.

Parks Board President Carla Eades Krebs said the resolution ensures that parks department bills will be promptly paid. “People who have already done work need to be paid, and because there do come times when the four of us (members of the parks board) cannot get a quorum, this gives our Board of Public Works and Safety permission on our behalf to approve so that they can get their paychecks and pay our claims when we are unable to meet.”

There have been a few times recently when the Parks Board was not able to meet on its regularly scheduled date — the first Monday of the month — and that has delayed when claims can be paid. The Board of Public Works and Safety meets twice monthly on the first and third Mondays so in situations where the Parks Board is unable to meet, the Board of Public Works and Safety can take the needed action.

Parks Director Scott

Klein said the change will allow statutory requirements to be followed while ensuring payments are made more promptly.
At the regular Parks Board meeting on Aug. 7, Klein noted that philosophically he believes in paying bills as promptly as possible. “I always had better luck in the construction industry with contractors that got paid frequently than those that strung out for 45 days. We need to be cognizant of the fact that we deal with a lot of small companies that cash flow is an issue, and I don’t want to string them out any longer than we absolutely have to.”

Shannon Henry said Jennifer, who is mentally and physically handicapped, normally does not stray far from home or wander at night, but for some reason she left her bed in the middle of Thursday night, took a small LED lantern that she keeps by her bedside, and ventured out into the dark. When she went to check on Jennifer Friday morning she was missing and the lantern was gone. Jennifer Henry, 77, and her husband Richard, 80, searched all over their property without success and then called the Jennings County Sheriff's Office for help. "They sent several officers out to help find her by searching the woods and with a drone," Jennifer Henry said. "We would have never found her without their help. We want to really thank them and acknowledge what they did for us and Jennifer." Henry was providing

"They said the water in the branch was 42 degrees when they found her. It rained hard the next night and if she'd been in the branch then she would have probably been under water. It's a miracle and I want to make sure they are properly thanked."

tion." The deputy located the lantern where she had spotted it earlier and found Jennifer nearby in the branch where she had been in the water for an estimated six hours. "They said she had severe hypothermia," Shannon said, noting an ambulance crew transported her to Schneck Medical Center in Seymour where she was treated and released. "They said the water in the branch was 42 degrees when they found her. It rained hard the next night and if she'd been in the branch then she would have probably been under water. It's a miracle and I want to make sure they are properly thanked." The officers who were involved in the search include Sheriff Kenny Freeman, Low, Sgt. Drew Heilers, Det. Ian McPherson, Gabbard, SRO/Deputy Shawn Minton, and EMS Shift Supervisor Mike Deshong. Shannon Henry said she and her family can't thank the first responders enough for their help in that time of crisis.

Part of process of accumulating data was recently achieved through a community survey in which 684 people took part and 474 completed the entire survey. "That's a really great response rate," said Swihart, noting 200 people is typically recommended regardless of the community size.

When asked for one word summarizing things people like about downtown Madison, the "beautiful" was named most often and selected by 40 people. "I don't think I've seen that word that big in any community," said Swihart, noting that other words that were listed prominently included quaint, walk, historic, shop, community, unique, vibrant, architecture and river. When asked for a word summarizing things disliked about downtown, the work most often named was "parking," which Swihart said is always the top response in every Main Street survey she had conducted. "Yes, it's there" but there are typically two reasons.

First, she said, it's "more of a walking problem, either people don't want to walk or they're unable to." Secondly, it's an educational issue. "Maybe they don't know where to park" or they think if they park a certain place it will take longer than it actually does. "I would say quite confidently you don't have a parking problem," Swihart said, adding that even if more housing were added to downtown Madison by more widely utilizing upper floors of buildings "we would have to have a very strategic campaign of education that informs people where they can park" whether they're a resident or a customer "to have more clarity and guidance for people to make it easier for everybody to find parking." Swihart noted the question about what they disliked forced respondents to say something they don't like, and there were actually several who responded by saying they disliked nothing about downtown Madison. "That's amazing" that several had that response," she said. Meanwhile, in terms of the top three issues in downtown, 41% stated that not enough businesses were open when they're out, 39% said there was not enough parking, 32% said homelessness or housing insecurity was a top issue, and 30% identified the lack of public restrooms. In terms of reasons people come to downtown, 64% were for dining and 56% for events or festivals. Other reasons included seeing family and friends, for downtown recreation to walk and exercise, and doctor appointments. In terms of businesses people most would like to see in downtown, 47% stated a grocery store — an issue that will soon be addressed with the opening of the DG Market — and 29% want more family entertainment, 25% would like a shared food vendor space, 24% would like more family or casual restaurants and 22% would like a drug store or pharmacy, which was lost to the downtown area when Madison Apothecary closed in February of 2022. The survey response stated that 51% would like more housing in downtown Madison, which is higher than the average response of 39% at other Main Streets. Asked whether they felt comfortable or safe in and around downtown, 91% agreed that they do feel safe which is higher than the average of 80%. Swihart said Placer.ai data showed that from Aug. 1, 2023 to July 31, 2024, there were 386,000 visitors in the Madison Main Street district with 2.7 million visits. The last Census showed a population of 12,357 in Madison, which provides that for every one resident of the city there are 31 visitors. "That is a much higher ratio compared to other Main Street districts," she said. Swihart offered that with tourism being a significant factor in Madison's economy, the focus of downtown should be more than that. "You get a lot of business from tourists, but how great would it be if also there is a lot of business from residents. We're not trying to replace, we're try to add" to that, she said. Austin Sims, executive director of Madison Main Street, said the strategies that are developed will be "little things one piece at a time that our organization can try to look at what we're currently doing, and how we can improve it, and add something new. We're all very lucky to be here in Madison. We're thankful to be here. I like to think as this being the icing on the cake" for doing anything that can be done to make it even better.

- Approved an user agreement with Advanced Time, a time and attendance service based in Michigan, for a program "Attendance on Demand" that provides an automated time clock for county employees that would work with the county's payroll system. In July, County Council had approved spending $63,475 from American Rescue Plan funds for installation and a one-year service contract. "We're behind the times on this," said County Auditor Heather Huff, noting she has been told that at some point in the future it is expected that such a system will be mandated by the state. "It's best to be ahead of the curve and not be the ones forced to do this," she added.

- Brandon Tucker, the county's 911 director, and Matt True, the county's Emergency Management Agency director, both registered complaints about the lack of response to technical issues from Ovation, the county's information technology company. Tucker said that during the weekend of Aug. 17-18 the county's automatic number and location identifier went down, and the dispatch got no response from Ovation. "This isn't the first time we had a major outage when we called for help," and struggled to get a response for help, True added.

The drill will be focused primarily on damage assessment procedures with response to a tornado disaster.

The first Old Settlers Meeting was held on the last Saturday of August in 1885 as a gathering of old friends that has continued on as a community event, still on the last Saturday in August. Organizers characterize it as a place "where friends meet friends and make new friends." Dale Armstrong, president of the Neavill's Grove Association, said that Old Settlers Meeting is not just a time for fun and fellowship, but also serves as a fundraiser for maintaining the park the rest of the year. Painted slate roof tiles from the Bill Ford estate will be auctioned at 1 p.m. "We want to keep The Grove going," said Armstrong, noting the park is known for the beauty of its beech trees. The park is also rented out for family picnics, reunions and other events during the year.

Dyer hits Scottsburg on both ends; leads Madison to victory

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Jake Dyer opened the game with a touchdown and closed it with an interception to lead Madison to a 20-14 win over Scottsburg in the season opener at home on Friday.

Dyer took the opening kickoff 80 yards for the touchdown to give the Cubs a 6-0 lead just 12 seconds into the game. But with Madison's offense scuffling, it was Dyer that gave Madison the lift that it needed.

With Madison trailing 14-12 with seven minutes to play, the Cubs dipped into their bag of tricks to take the lead. Quarterback Matt McCarty threw a lateral pass to Dyer who immediately tossed a 20-yard strike to a wide-open Joseph Stanley, who caught the ball in stride and sprinted 59 yards for the go-ahead score. Stanley then ran in the two-point conversion to put the Cubs ahead 20-14.

Any hope of a Scottsburg comeback was stopped in its tracks after Peyton Stewart intercepted a pass to end one drive. Dyer then drove a stake into the Warriors with his second interception of the game with 38 seconds to go.

"We weren't moving the ball, so we had to find a different way to get some points," Dyer said. "So we did what we could."

Madison started the game out with a bang but the offense struggle to move the ball all night and while Scottsburg wasn't much better, it was enough to give the Warriors the lead throughout

The defenses dominated as both teams combined for just two first downs in the first quarter and only six in the first half.

Still, Scottsburg had enough in the tank to finally put together a scoring drive midway through the second quarter when quarterback Nathan Byrd hit Garrett Boling on a 6-yard pass for the score. Tucker Doriot added the extra point and the Warriors held a slight 7-6 lead. Scottsburg (0-1) added a second touchdown midway through the third when Landon Shuck capped the Warriors' best drive of the game with a 6-yard run. Doriot again added the PAT and the lead ballooned to 14-6.

Despite the deficit, Madison first-year coach Charles Benintende liked his chances at a comeback, especially as he watched Scottsburg players start to go down with cramps.

"We worked hard all summer and so forth on conditioning, and that's pretty much what it came down to," said Benintende, who became the first Madison coach to win his first game with the Cubs since Patric Morrison in 2013. "I keep telling the kids that we get to halftime within seven points, we're going to be winning some football games, because we conditioned very hard over the summer and it proved beneficial. Tonight, you saw that."

Madison (1-0) answered Scottsburg's score with its best drive of the game, an 83-yarder that culminated in Taytem Anderson's 1-yard plunge with 50 seconds left in the third quarter. But the Cubs' two-point conversion failed and Madison still trailed by two setting up the winning score.

Stanley finished with 122 yards on five receptions but Madison had only 180 total yards of offense. Shuck had 130 yards rushing to lead Scottsburg, which had 224 total yards.

Madison guts out 2-0 win over Southwestern in sloppy game

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison's Vincent Lange (11) is swarmed by teammates Brady Lock (10), Griffin Schwartz (7) and Henry Schmidt after converting a penalty kick in the Cubs' 2-0 boys soccer win over Southwestern on Thursday.

It wasn't the prettiest of games, but in the end, it was a win for Madison as the Cubs outlasted rival Southwestern 2-0 in boys soccer on the turf field at Madison.

A total of 22 fouls were called in the game — including 11 yellow cards — and there were an untold number of offsides as neither team looked sharp in the early-season showdown between two defending sectional champions.

Still, both coaches were philosophical about the game and were ready to move on.

"I think our guys came in knowing that (Southwestern) lost some guys from last year, and they thought it was gonna be a little bit easier. We tried to drill in their head that it wasn't gonna be," Madison coach Kyle Bookeloo said.

"But I'm very proud of the guys with the way they battled and kind of got us back into the second half. And I felt like the second half was a heck of a lot better than first half."

"When you go into the season graduating eight guys, we knew coming in that it was going to be a feeling out process," said Southwestern's Cam Rogers, in his first year as head coach after several years as an assistant under Seth Shields.

"I think overall, I thought we were pretty decent, all things considered."

The game was a defensive struggle for much of the match as neither team could put together a consistent offensive threat. A total of just 22 shots were taken in the game, with Madison getting 13 attempts, with 11 of those on goal.

Despite the offensive woes, Madison was able to find two scoring opportunities and converted on both which was the difference in the game.

Pacers roll over Crawford in season opener

BY ADAM PIETRYKOWSKI

MARENGO — The Switzerland County Pacers opened the 2024 football season in dominating fashion Friday night, cruising to a 39-0 victory at Crawford County that could have been much more lopsided.

The Pacers took control immediately, getting a long kickoff return to begin the game, before punching in the first touchdown of the night on a Matt Young carry from 11 yards out just four plays into the new season.

Head coach Ryan Jesop took notice of his players' focus.

"I can't say enough about how well our assistant coaches had our guys locked in to play tonight," Jesop said. "We definitely have some mistakes to clean up, but it is always good to start off the season with a win on the road."

The Switzerland defense forced a three and out on the next series, and after a poor punt and a good return the Pacers were again set up with a short field.

The next offensive series took two plays — both by Keaton Mosley — before the Pacers again found the end zone to expand their lead.

Another three and out forced by the Swiss defense resulted in the Pacers starting their third straight drive inside their opponent's 40-yard line. Switzerland again found pay dirt in just two plays, as Alex Bailey completed a 29-yard touchdown pass to Matt Markee.

The Pacer defense kept the pressure on Crawford County to once again force them off the field after just three plays. The following offensive series saw the Pacers break off run after run for big yardage culminating in a Kolvin Beck rushing touchdown from 20 yards out and the rout was officially on.

Crawford County, realizing the game was slipping away, went for a fourth and short in their own territory on the next series, but the Pacer defense rose up and stuffed the play to give the Swiss offense tremendous field position once again.

A 37-yard run by Young followed by a 4-yard rushing touchdown from Mosley gave the Pacers their fifth touchdown of the game, and a 32-0 lead, all within the first quarter.

The Pacer defense was relentless all night, and never gave Crawford a chance to establish anything through the air or on the ground. Switzerland held the Wolfpack to negative yardage while the starters were on the field.

Early in the second quarter, after the Pacers' defense had once again stood its ground, Kolvin Beck provided the highlight of the night. Running left on a sweep, Beck was confronted with a safety attempting to make the tackle high, Beck stiff-armed the defender straight to the ground and galloped 54 yards for the touchdown, putting an exclamation point on the dominant performance.

"This was as complete a game as you could hope for," Switzerland Offensive Coordinator Joe Spillman said. "I think our players have been working hard all summer thinking about Friday nights, and they came out here ready to show off all the work they have put in."

The remainder of the game was a back and forth affair as Switzerland County was able to get valuable experience for some younger players while maintaining the shutout victory, 39-0.

Switzerland had 345 total yards of offense compared to just 75 for Crawford County. Beck rushed for 116 yards and two touchdowns while Young had 83 yards rushing and a score and Mosley had 80 yards rushing and two scores.

The Pacers are now 3-0 against Crawford County in their last three meetings — outscoring the Wolfpack a combined 115-0 in that span — dating back to a 33-6 loss to Crawford in 2021.

Switzerland County (1-0) will host Gallatin County (0-1) next Friday night. The Wildcats from Warsaw, Kentucky, lost 24-14 at Dayton in their season opener on Friday.

Cubs finish 5th in New Pal Invite

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison's girls golf team played the new Links course at New Palestine on Saturday and came away with a fifth-place finish out of nine schools in the New Palestine Invitational.

Madison shot a 398, well off the pace of winner No. 20 New Palestine, which had a 345. But Madison coach Jake Shockley was pleased with the performance.

"That's a pretty darn good 398, actually. That's the first time we've been to The Links and that place is tough. There is trouble everywhere. That is a regional-level course," Shockley said. "Plus, Emmi (Dowell) and Eliza (Burnett) were both battling through illness, and it was an extremely hot day. According to the slope and rating, it's the second hardest course we've played behind Bloomington Country Club, but the girls said The Links played harder. The 398 is probably 20 to 25 strokes better at home."

Dowell started off strong but faded to finish with an 84 to lead the Cubs while Burnett had a 99 and was the only other player to break 100. "Emmi got off to a hot start, but I knew it would be difficult for her to maintain because of the sickness. She and Eliza really battled today," Shockley said. "Many players would have called or texted me and said they wouldn't have been able to go today. I think they would have made me carry them off on a stretcher; although I would never let it get to that point."

Aleigh Wilson added a 104 for Madison, Izzie Perry had a 111 and Claire Miller carded a 114 for the Cubs.

"Izzie is starting to point in the right direction, too. We tried to shorten her swing this week, which helped quite a bit. She's put in some short-game practice with Coach (Amanda) Determer-Leary, and she holed out from about 25 yards on 18 for her first-ever birdie," Shockley said. "Aleigh's ball striking is really good right now, but it's not translating to her score. I've been around a little bit, and usually it's only a matter of time when somebody is hitting it that well before it starts to show up on the scorecard."

East Central's Rowan Pies was the low-medalist with a 70. Madison hosts Charlestown and Henryville on Tuesday and heads to Columbus East on Wednesday.

"The girls have worked very hard in practice this week and the results showed today at the course," Southwestern coach Matt Johnson said. "We are looking forward to playing back at home next week and continuing to improve as a team."

Rodrigo Reyes-Miranda scored in the fifth minute for Shawe and the Hilltoppers extended their lead with another goal from Reyes-Miranda in the 20th minute. Assumption answered with back-to-back goals in the 23rd and 32nd minute to even the score before a Gus Grote goal with an assist from Bartosz Rychlicki closed out the scoring in the 39th minute to secure the Shawe win. Shawe suffered a 10-1 loss at Jeffersonville on Saturday. Aiden Edmondson scored the Hilltoppers' lone goal off an assist by Rychlicki. Shawe, now 2-1 on the season, hosted Lanesville on Monday and hosts South Ripley on Wednesday.

on Thursday with a 5-3 win at Christian Academy of Indiana. Salma Rangel, Ameca-Mendoza and Flint each scored goals in the first half for the Hilltoppers with Ameca-Mendoza and Pollitt adding goals in the second. Shawe out-shot the Warriors 28-5. Grandal hits a 2-run homer as Pirates rally past Reds PITTSBURGH — Yasmani Grandal hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning, sending the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds on Sunday.

Bryan De La Cruz was hit by a pitch from Alexis Díaz (1-4) before Grandal connected for his seventh homer — a drive into the first row above the Clemente Wall in right field. It was Grandal’s fourth career game-ending homer.

Aroldis Chapman (5-4) handled the ninth for the win. Elly De La Cruz reached on a leadoff single, but Chapman picked him off before striking out Tyler Stephenson and TJ Friedl.

Isiah Kiner-Falefa had three hits for Pittsburgh, which won three of four in the series.

PIRATES 7, REDS 0

Paul Skenes struck out nine in six dominant innings, Bryan De La Cruz hit a three-run double during a six-run fifth inning and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-0 on Thursday night.

Skenes (8-2), the rookie who started last month’s All-Star game, allowed just two hits and one walk after going 1-1 with a 4.15 ERA in his previous three starts. Through 17 starts and 92 innings, Skenes has struck out 110.

Skenes has pitched 131 1/3 innings between the major and minor leagues in his first full professional season and the Pirates may curtail his workload late in September. However, he looked strong against the Reds.

Nick Lodolo (9-6) shut down the Pirates on one hit over the first four innings before being chased with two outs in the fifth. He was charged with five runs, while striking out nine and walking three.

Lodolo is 1-4 with a 7.38 ERA in his last 10 starts after going 8-2 with a 2.76 ERA in his first 11 outings this season.

PIRATES 6, REDS 5

Bryan De La Cruz drove in a pair of runs and the Pittsburgh Pirates rallied past the Cincinnati Reds 6-5 on Friday night.

The Pirates had dropped nine straight one-run games since the July 30 trade deadline before coming back from five down to beat the skidding Reds for the sixth time in eight meetings so far this season.

Joey Bart and Rowdy Tellez had two hits each for Pittsburgh, which is 5-3 since a 10-game slide dropped it to last place in the NL Central and effectively ended its playoff chances.

Tyler Stephenson hit his 17th home run of the season for Cincinnati. Santiago Espinal had three hits for the Reds but was also thrown out at second base in the seventh while trying to advance on a fly ball to center field, one of a handful of miscues by Cincinnati.

starting rotation took another hit Friday when the club placed Andrew Abbott on the 15-day injured list with a strained left shoulder. Reliever Buck Farmer got the start in Abbott’s place and Farmer, Sam Moll and Tony Santillan held the Pirates without a hit for four innings.

REDS 10, PIRATES 2

Elly De La Cruz had three hits and drove in a pair of runs as the Cincinnati Reds breezed past the sloppy Pittsburgh Pirates 10-2 on Saturday night.

Jonathan India and TJ Friedl added two hits apiece for the Reds, who beat the Pirates for just the third time in nine meetings this season.

De La Cruz hit an RBI single in the fifth and a run-scoring double in the sixth.

The 6-foot-5 shortstop also boosted his stolen base total to a major league-leading 61 by swiping second base after a one-out walk in the first inning. De La Cruz eventually scored on a single by Stephenson as part of a four-run outburst against Jake Woodford (0-6).

Rookie Julian Aguiar (1-0) allowed two runs in six innings to pick up his first career victory.

The 23-year-old right-hander, Cincinnati’s minor league Pitcher of the Year in 2023, struck out four against two walks in his second start since being called up to help the Reds’ injury-depleted pitching staff.

Reds reliever’s long road back to the majors ends with 1st MLB save

BY WILL GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH — Triple-A Louisville manager Pat Kelly occasionally likes to have a little fun when he gets to tell one of his players they’re heading to the majors.

And Kelly tried his best on short notice on Friday night when he approached his son Casey on the field following a postgame fireworks display and asked him what he was doing on Saturday.

The younger Kelly — a pitcher and former first-round pick who spent six years in the Korean Baseball Organization before the Cincinnati Reds signed him to a minor league deal this month — told his father:

“I’m starting for you tomorrow.”

Only he wasn’t. He was going back to the big leagues, and when the elder Kelly passed along the news surrounded by their family, there was no punchline. No hearty laugh. Just a moment between father and son that neither saw coming during Casey’s long detour in the KBO.

“We kind of just stared at each other for a good couple seconds,” Casey Kelly said. “And then he started to cry and I started to cry.”

The tears quickly dried. There was too much to do.

By Saturday morning, Casey Kelly was in Pittsburgh. By Saturday night, he was on a major league mound for the first time in 2,159 days. And by the end of the ninth, the 34-year-old Kelly was celebrating the first save of his career after pitching three perfect innings in a 10-2 victory.

“This has just all been a whirlwind of a month,” Kelly said. “Just trying to soak it all in.”

There’s plenty to think about. Kelly was taken 30th overall in the 2008 draft by the Boston Red Sox. He was 18 at the time. He eventually reached the majors in 2012 with San Diego and bounced from the Padres to Atlanta and San Francisco, going 2-11 with a 5.46 ERA in 26 appearances.

Kelly left for the LG Twins of the KBO in 2019, where all the pieces he struggled to put together in the majors finally started to fit. The teenager who relied heavily on his fastball and curveball developed a changeup and slider he could trust. He figured out how to navigate his way through a lineup three or four times.

Results soon followed. Kelly went 73-48 with a 3.31 ERA in six seasons with the Twins and while he wondered if his stuff was still good enough to get major league hitters out, he admits the prospect seemed to be getting further and further away as his late 20s turned into his mid-30s.

Casey Kelly arrived in Louisville to play for his dad with no expectations other than to show Cincinnati’s front office his soon-to-be 35-year-old right arm still had some life left in it and maybe prove something to himself in the process.

Things changed in late July when LG released him with Kelly’s ERA languishing at 4.51.

The Reds, their injury-ravaged pitching staff in need of help, took a flyer on Kelly and signed him to a minor league deal.

Kelly arrived in Louisville to play for his dad with no expectations other than to show Cincinnati’s front office his soon-to-be 35-year-old right arm still had some life left in it and maybe prove something to himself in the process.

“You know, there’s a little bit of doubt in your mind of ‘Can I still do it over here?’” Kelly said.

Against the Pirates, he could. Kelly came on for highly touted rookie Julian Aguiar with a six-run lead. He retired all nine Pirates he faced, including two on strikeouts. He threw 25 of his 38 pitches for strikes, relying on location and off-speed stuff to keep the Pirates off balance on a night when his fastball topped out at 92 mph.

It was enough to give the rest of Cincinnati’s over-worked bullpen a welcome night off, and maybe provide a shot of adrenaline to a clubhouse in need of a lift during a second-half swoon that has pushed the Reds off the pace in the chase for a playoff spot.

“Casey did his part for sure,” Cincinnati manager David Bell said. “The good vibes, the positive response, that’s just who our team is. Casey fits right in.”

For now and Kelly hopes, maybe down the road too. A full 16 years after he was drafted and more than half-a-decade after he headed overseas in search of a reset, everything is suddenly back on the table.

“I really feel like pitching-wise, it’s the best I’ve been, being able to throw everything where I want to,” he said. “And, obviously you have those days where they’re not. But, you know, I’m confident in my skills now as a pitcher. Again, this league is so hard. It’s the best of the best. So we’ll just see what happens.”

Once-distant father now demands child's help

Dear Eric: I had a close relationship with my father until he remarried in my mid-20s. When he remarried, he told my brother and me that we would be excluded from his trust. He stated that he had raised us and was done with any financial support.

Since then, we have had a superficial relationship at times and a conflicted one at others. His wife has manipulated him and alienated him from all extended family members over the course of the last couple of decades.

He is now 82, in poor health and has been dumped in an assisted living facility by his much-younger wife. He expects me to assist him with many tasks, such as transportation to medical appointments. I live an hour away and still have my own children at home to care for.

My resentment prevents me from having any desire to help him. How do I make peace with setting boundaries to protect myself and deal with the guilt-tripping that comes with it? How do I let my resentments go, so that when he passes, I will be at peace?

— Taken for Granted

Dear Granted: Often guilt trips are the last resort of a person who refuses to take responsibility for their own actions or wants. Remember that this is someone who isn't communicating with you fairly or clearly.

That doesn't have to be your inheritance, though.

Now is the time to have an honest conversation about how your relationship changed, how it affected you and what you're doing in the present to protect yourself.

He may not be ready for this conversation. But you need to say your peace, unapologetically hold your boundaries and ask your questions while you have the chance.

You can't change the past — the way that your relationship deteriorated, your feelings about the trust, the trouble with his wife. You also can't change him — his expectations, any cruelty or coldness.

Furthermore, it's not your responsibility to untangle messes he's made. Where is his wife? What's become of the trust? It's possible he's a victim of financial elder abuse. There are resources for him through the Department of Health and Human Services' Eldercare Locator, (800-677-1116). You can point him in the direction of a solution while maintaining your boundary.

Wife says husband's affection is creepy

Dear Eric: I am a 64-year-old man, married for 42 years. I am married to the smartest, kindest, most decent person I have ever known. I tell her that all the time. I am also still wildly attracted to her. She finds that creepy, which makes me feel awful. She feels my physical attraction to her is demeaning. Is it creepy for me to still feel so physically attracted to my wife?

— Love Language

Dear Language: Ask her how she wants to feel appreciated. Maybe something has changed about the way she feels about herself, her sex drive or even you. Maybe your way of expressing your attraction has changed. In fact, I'm certain that some or all of these things have changed. You're entering new life stages in the fourth decade of your marriage. If nothing has changed, something is wrong.

Is this about physical intimacy, the words you're using, the amount of sex you're having? The way to find out is to ask questions without an expectation. "Can you tell me more about what I'm doing that feels creepy?" or "What would be an expression of attraction that felt good?" or simply "Something feels different between us, do you agree?"

R. ERIC THOMAS
ASKING ERIC

You love this smart, kind, decent woman, so take the opportunity to listen to her smarts, without judgment and with as much openness as you can muster.

Dear Eric: We want to give our older car to our granddaughter, but we also have a step-grandson that lives in the same house and who is close to the same age. He won't have a car other than my son's and daughter-in-law's. I don't want to cause a problem. He has grandparents, also. I should be able to do it if we want to, I would think.

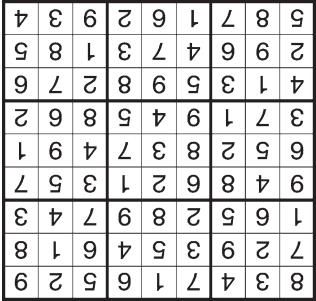

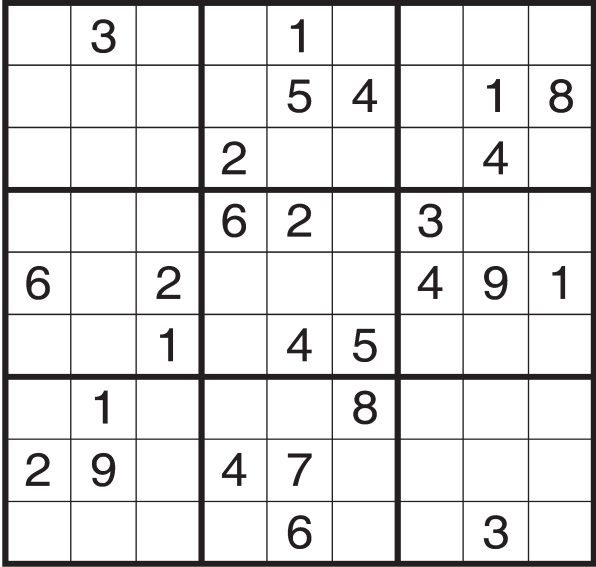

— Carpooling

Dear Carpooling: Sure, you can do anything you want.

Have you asked your son and daughter-in-law about it? They can help flag and smooth out any sibling strife bubbling up from the gift. It's also a great idea, in general, to check with them before giving a car to their kid.

Putting the car aside, I'm curious what your relationship is like with your step-grandson. Obviously, it's going to be different, but it doesn't necessarily have to feel lesser simply because you're not related by blood. You don't have to give him a car, but you have an opportunity to build a relationship that works for both of you.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Your opposite number might make some surprising moves, or someone could urge you to go back on a promise. Your instinct to go along and remain amenable for the sake of keeping the peace might not be in your best interest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Embrace new challenges with calm confidence. You might just discover a hidden talent, which could help you welcome unexpected opportunities. You might not have your wildest dreams fulfilled if you pursue romance tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Dynamics within your relationships might have their ups and downs, but positive changes are on the horizon. It may not be that anything is fundamentally wrong; rather, some issues could need extra generosity of love and patience.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Make a positive impact on the world with small, mindful actions. Every little bit of effort might count towards a brighter future. Keep an eye out for alliances or well-honed strategies that may have the ability to bring your plans to life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — While ignorance can sometimes be bliss, it could also lead to errors. You might not be certain you're making the right choices or that people are who they appear to be. It could be best to avoid signing contracts or making deals for now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Find a balance between tactics and feelings. Every key relationship might not necessarily be based on affection or romantically charged, but every transaction may give you a chance to show off your people skills and intelligence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may seek harmony in your interactions. Gentle humor might ease tensions and keep the peace during uncertain times. You might be a peacemaker but ensure that you're keeping up with your fair share of the workload to keep balance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You may think everything is going very well with your funds or your projects but might be blind to problems within your inner circle. Be grateful that you may have sensible friends who can help steer you in the right direction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — New acquaintances may be able to trust and appreciate your talents better if you don't give in to every passing desire. Consider taking time to understand what makes a lasting passion and avoid acting on sudden nudges of jealousy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may feel a strong urge for social interaction but be cautious since your kind nature might be misunderstood. Be mindful, as you could be drawn to people who might not truly be who they appear to be or who may hide their intentions.

Richardson struggles with accuracy, consistency

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Anthony Richardson led a touchdown drive on his first series against Bengals backups Thursday night, but the rest of his night was a struggle.

The Colts quarterback got his first significant chunk of playing time with the rest of the offensive starters in the final preseason game. He showed he still has work to do on his accuracy and consistency. The fourth overall pick in the 2023 draft played the first five offensive series, finishing 8 for 14 for 86 yards in Indianapolis' 27-14 victory over Cincinnati.

Most of it came on the first drive after a Cincinnati punt when Richardson directed an 80-yard drive, completing 7 of 8 passes for 65 yards and finishing it with a 9-yard scoring toss to Adonai Mitchell. His one incompletion was a throw that sailed through the hands of tight end Drew Ogletree in the end zone. It got worse from there. Bengals safety Jordan Battle picked off Richardson's pass and went in 9 yards for a TD. The third drive stalled when Richardson missed Mitchell on third-and-6 from the Colts 35. Then he missed Mitchell again deep on third down to force another punt. On his last drive before giving way to Sam Ehlinger, he put the Colts in the hole with a sack and fumble. On third-and-15, picked up just 3 yards on a scramble. Richardson was upbeat afterward. "It's always fun when I get to play football. As far as the game, stuff is going to happen," he said. "Stuff is not always going to go our way. There's going to be incomplete passes. I'm going to miss some passes, receivers are going to drop some. Stuff like that is going happen." Richardson is trying to get right after an injury-filled rookie season limited him to just four starts. He finished only one game. Now the 22-year-old must prove he can remain healthy enough to make an impact as the franchise quarterback the Colts expect him to be.

"We saw what we're able to do that first drive, and those last few there are some things we wish we could take away from that, but it was a decent learning curve for all of us," he said. Colts coach Shane Steichen's confidence in his quarterback hasn't wavered. "Guys are going to miss throws. I don't care if you're a second-year player or a 15-year veteran," he said. "I don't have any concerns. He's going to make some huge plays for us this year. I think it's also going to be fun to watch." Colts quarterback Jason Bean capped a drive of nearly eight minutes with a 1-yard TD run in the fourth quarter. Spencer Schrader kicked field goals of 56 and 41 yards. Jonathan Taylor, the Colts' feature running back, rushed four times for 15 yards before he departed. Demetric Felton broke away for a 40-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter. Bengals coach Zac Taylor held out all of his starters and the backups couldn't do much. They finished without a win in the preseason. "Obviously, we don't play a lot of starters, but it's really good experience for guys we're going to be counting on in different parts of the season," he said. "Going 0-3 is not what we wanted, but I still think we get a lot out of it."

Bengals star WR Chase returns to practice following contract 'hold in'

CINCINNATI — Bengals star receiver Ja'Marr Chase ended his contract "hold in" and practiced for the first time this summer on Sunday, two weeks before Cincinnati opens the season against the New England Patriots. Chase had been watching most practices but not participating as he seeks a long-term contract extension. He is in the fourth year of his rookie contract and the Bengals already have exercised a fully guaranteed $21.8 million fifth-year option for 2025. But Chase is seeking to become the latest receiver to cash in with a megadeal.

downs, ranking in the top seven of all time in all three categories for a player in his first three seasons. Chase, fellow receiver Tee Higgins and quarterback Joe Burrow have teamed to make the Bengals one of the most potent passing offenses in the game. Cincinnati locked up Burrow with a five-year, $275 million deal before last season. Higgins is playing this year on a $21.8 million franchise tag and is set to hit the open market next offseason.

Lake Mary rallies to beat Taiwan 2-1

BY AMANDA VOGT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Lathan Norton was sick and didn't play on Saturday at the Little League World Series. But on Sunday he scored the winning run in the championship.

Lathan raced home from second base on an overthrow at first as Lake Mary, Florida, rallied to beat Taiwan 2-1 in eight innings and claim the title.

"It was the greatest feeling ever," said Lathan, who had a fever of 102 on Saturday but recovered before the championship.

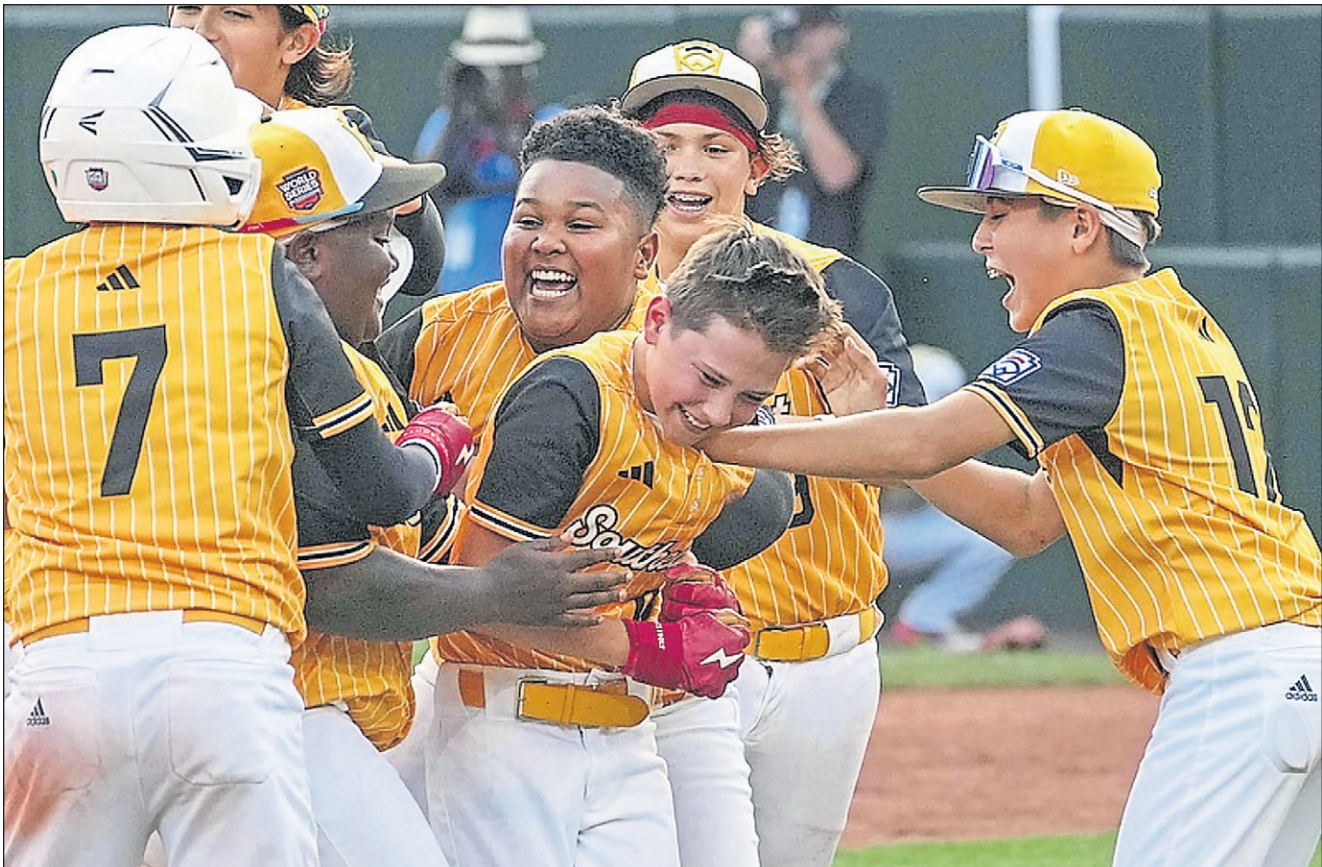

"I still haven't had time to let it all sink in, but it feels like the most amazing thing ever."

Taiwan clung to a 1-0 lead from the first inning until Florida's last at-bat.

The Southeast region representatives outthit Taiwan and had a runner on third in three separate innings, but couldn't get a run across.

Then, in the bottom of the sixth, Florida got runners on first and second and DeMarcos Mieses, who struck out in his previous two at-bats, delivered.

Hitting the gap in shallow left, he gave Chase Anderson enough time to Hunter Alexander, center, celebrates with teammates after laying down a bunt that led to the go-ahead run in the eighth inning of a walk-off win in the Little League World Series Championship game Sunday in South Williamsport, Pa. Lake Mary (Fla.), representing the Southeast Region, won the U.S. title against Texas on Saturday before beating Taiwan 2-1 on Sunday in the extra-inning matchup.

sprint home and tie the game.

In the eighth, Lathan was placed by rule on second base to start the inning.

Hunter Alexander bunted and the throw to first went into the outfield.

Florida players poured out of the dugout while the Taiwan players crumpled.

"I was just thinking, 'Stay fair, stay fair,'" Hunter said. "After that ball goes past me, I say, 'Let's go!'"

Taiwan drew two straight walks to start the game. After a bunt moved the runners over and a pop out, Hu Yen-Chun hit a ball toward third, which ricocheted off James Feliciano. Chiu Wei-Che scored easily.

But it was Taiwan's only run.

This is the first cham-

This is the first championship in nine tries for Florida, which also came from behind in its 10-7 semifinal win over Texas on Saturday, scoring five runs in its final at-bat.

Florida manager Jonathan Anderson said. "We took a loss to Texas, we battled all the way back and here we are to talk about how we won this whole thing."

Taiwan was a dominant team at the LLWS from 1969, when it won its first championship, to 1996, when it claimed its 17th.

But it had only made the title game once since, in 2009, a loss to California, before Sunday. Lee Cheng-Ta managed both that team and this year's club, Kuei-Shan Little League from Taoyuan, Taiwan. Last season, he led the same team — with a completely different roster — to a third-place finish.

Coaches for Taiwan, representing the Asia-Pacific region, declined to attend the postgame news conference.

Madison's Jason Cosby (70) brings down Scottsburg quarterback Nathan Byrd (11) for a sack during the Cubs' season opening 20-14 football win at home on Friday.

VICTORY

A week after getting five takeaways in a scrimmage against Jeffersonville, Madison had four takeaways on Friday against Scottsburg. Along with Dyer's two interceptions and Stewart's one INT, the Cubs also recovered a fumble. After the game, Benintende gushed about Dyer, who had his hand in nearly every big play for the Cubs on both sides of the ball. "The kid can do it all. I think if he was like 6-3, 6-4, we'd be talking about him at Division I. I really do," the coach said. "He's got the head, he's got the leadership ability. He's just a very smart football player, and I'm blessed to have him as part of our team."

Madison hosts South Dearborn next week. The Knights, 5-5 a year ago including a 41-0 win over Madison, are 1-0 after defeating Jennings County 42-14 in their season opener on Friday in Aurora.

Southwestern's Connor Johnson (left) trips over Madison's Lennard Cordis (on ground) near the goal late in Madison's 2-0 boys soccer win on Thursday.

"Letting in that goal after we had played pretty decent was kind of a downer," Rogers said. "We just needed to clear the ball and we would have been fine." Madison's second goal came on a breakaway in the 73rd minute after Griffin Schwartz lofted a high ball from 25 yards out that cleared goalie Tryson Warren's hands and came in just under the bar for a 2-0 lead. "That was a tough shot and I was proud of Griffin for going for it," Bookeloo said.

Warren allowed two goals and stopped four shots in his first game after replacing the graduated William Stockdale in goal and Rogers was pleased with his effort. "Tryson has huge shoes to fill and I have absolutely no complaints with how he played," Rogers said. "One thing I told him at the beginning of the season, I don't care whether you make a mistake or not. I just want whatever decision you make, I want you to make it with confidence. And that's exactly what he did."

On Saturday, Madison played Silver Creek to a 0-0 draw at home.

Southwestern, now 0-1 on the season, plays three Ohio River Valley Conference matches this week. The Rebels traveled to South Ripley on Monday, host Milan on Wednesday and head to Jac-Cen-Del on Friday. Madison, now 2-0-1, heads to Scottsburg on Tuesday for its only match this week.
